Taiwan-based DelSolar, a subsidiary of Delta Electronics, has signed a contract to secure NT$3.6 billion worth of solar wafer supply through 2015, with market sources indicating that Taiwan-based Sino-American Silicon Products (SAS) is the supplier.

DelSolar is also making plans to list on the Taiwan Stock Exchange (TSE). The company sent out its listing application on September 1, though no date was included for the IPO.

The company currently has four production lines in Hsinchu Science Park with capacity of 120 MWp, the market sources noted.

In related news, DelSolar is one of five Taiwan-based solar wafer suppliers that signed a contract with Taiwan wafer supplier Green Energy Technology (GET) in March of this year. That contract totaled US$990 million for GET.
